THIRD SESSION.

The Free Methodist Oil City conference in session at Unionville Friday morning enjoyed an amusing incident just after the opening, when Rev. J. P. Bradhead, bishop of the South African conference was introduced. The Bishop had on his overcoat, it being chilly and after briefly speaking, he made a motion, when voted to an honorary seat, that the stove he had just left be brought up within the bar of the conference, including first five seats. A playful passing of motion imposing the task of removing of stove by the missionary Bishop was indulged in,

ANSWERED THE ROLL CALL.

Samuel Gault Dies Very Suddenly at his home on Curtin Street.

Thursday at fifteen minutes after nine Samuel Gault one of Bellefonte's oldest citizens was called into the other world. It was certainly a great shock to the entire community as hardly any one knew Mr. Gault was seriously ill. The cause of his death was due to chronic gastritus. He took sick on Tuesday evening and seemed to grow gradually worse until death ended his sufferings

Samuel Gault had many friends who mourn his death, he was held in high esteem by the business men of the town. He was an old soldier and served his country faithfully during the Civil war. He was at the front during some of the hardest fights of the war, and the day General Beaver lost his leg, he was taken a prisoner by the Rebels. He knew what it was to suffer in the Southern prisons and for all this we say his reward will be in Heaven. He was a member of the Presbyterian church of Bellefonte, and of Gregg Post No. 95 and of the Carpenters Union.

Mr. Gault was fifty nine years old last February and was one of the leading contractors of the town and was considered one of the best carpenters in the country.

He leaves to mourn his death a loving wife and the following children: Mrs. Cyrus Showers of Bellefonte, Mrs. George Barnes and Mrs. Harry Stover of Altoona, Mrs. A. S. Showers of Bellefonte, Mrs. William Knepp of Huntingdon, Henry of Howard, George of Williamsport and James of Bellefonte.

On Saturday afternoon the last sad rites were said over the remains of the late Samuel Gault. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Allison Platts at his home on Curtin street at 3.30 o'clock. At the grave Gregg Post took charge of the services which were solemn and impressive. The casket bearers were the following gentlemen, Messrs. John I. Curtin, Emanuel Noll, Monroe Armor, Joseph Alters, Herman Miller and Amos Garbrick.

PROFESSOR REBER RESIGNS.

Pennsylvania State College to Lose Able Educator.

The report that Professor Louis E. Reber, dean of the school of engineering at the Pennsylvania State College, will resign to accept a position at the University of Wisconsin, causes deep concern at State College. Dean Reber has been connected with the Pennsylvania State College for 26 years, and the great growth of the institution has been due in a large measure to his exceptional gifts as an organizer.

Professor Reber's abilities are known far and wide and his services have frequently been called for by the state of Pennsylvania. In 1893 he organized and installed the exhibit of mining for the state of Pennsylvania at the World's fair in Chicago. This was pronounced one of the finest exhibits in the mining building. Again in 1903 he was called upon to install a similar exhibit at the St. Louis exhibition for which he received a special medal for "the best, most complete, and attractive installation in the mining building."

Run Down at the Passenger Station.

William Laird, aged 35 years, and residing at Port Matilda, was run down by Henrietta accomodation train No. 421, at 5:20 o'clock Tuesday evening and narrowly escaped being killed. He was going east on train No. 34 and had been accompanied to the station by members of his family to see him off. He talked to them for a time at the fence and when he attempted to cross the tracks to board the train he failed to notice the approach of train No. 421, was hit and knocked to one side of the track by the engine. He was stunned as the result of the accident and was hurried to the hospital, where an examination showed that he has sustained contusions of the body and head. He was admitted for treatment.—Altoona Tribune.

Snow Shoe Girls Here.

Three sisters, the Misses Budingers of Snow Shoe, and two young lady visitors, autoed from Snow Shoe to this city yesterday and spent the night with Miss Lucy Fredericks. Including Miss Fredericks, the sextette were students together at Birmingham seminary and their meeting together here last night may be imagined. Mr. Budingers, father of the Misses Budinger, drove the car.—Lock Haven Democrat.

SECOND WEEK OF COURT

Opened on Monday with Judge Orvis on the Bench.

JOSEPH NEFF vs P. R. R.

Has Taken up the Entire Week. Mr. Neff has Sued the Railroad Company for $10,000 Damages.

MANY WITNESSES ARE PRESENT.

The second week of September court convened Monday morning at ten o'clock with Judge Orvis on the bench. The first case called was that of John Butler vs Harvey S. Young Feigned issue verdict plaintiff.

Judgement was awarded against Frank K. White, adm. of J. W. Lukens in eight digerent cases.

On Monday afternoon the following sentences were imposed. Earl Freeman, charged with robbing Pierce's store at State College was sentenced to pay a fine of $1.00 costs of prosecution and undergo imprisonment in the Huntingdon Reformatory.

Willis Herman charged with larceny and cruelty to animals was sentenced to pay $1.00, costs of prosecution and serve two months in jail.

Wilbur Wilkinson, larceny, sentenced to pay $1.00, costs and 2 mo. in jail.

On Tuesday morning a very important case was called that of Joseph L. Neff vs the P. R. R. Co. The plaintiff was represented by N. B. Spangler and James C. Furst. This is an action for $10,000 damages against the company for injuries sustained by being struck by a train while driving across the track at Curtin station in Nov. 1904 The railroad companies interests are ably looked after by John Blanchard Esq. The accident happened about 8 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Neff was driving across the track when an extra freight east bound from Tyrone to Mill Hall consisting of an engine seven cars and a caboose struck him. The horse was killed and Mr. Neff who was 68 year old at the time was badly injured. He is unable to follow his various occupations of farming, auctioneering and lumbering. The evidence for the plaintiff was that he stopped, looked and listoned before trying to cross the track. Witnesses who were working in that vicinity testified that there was no whistle sounded or bell rung to give warning. The witnesses for the plaintiff thought the train was running 40 miles an hour. The defendants called the train crew who swore that they blew the whistle and rang the bell. The case occupied all day Tuesday and the greater part of Wednesday.

General Greeno, Major of the regiment, who now reside at Cincinnatti, has written the president of the association, R. H. Reduced rates will be given on all railroads leading to Bellefonte for the time of the reunion and any comrade desiring orders for tickets should write R. H. McGhee, president of the association, at Lock Haven.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Rev. Edwin Richardson Has Resigned.

We feel very sorry to announce that Rev. Edwin Richardson Rector of St. John's Epi-copal church has resigned, the same to take effect the 1st of November. Rev. Richardson has not been in good health lately and it is his intention to go abroad into the Holy Lands and spend a good bit of his time visiting through Palestine and other places of interest.

Since coming to Bellefonte Rev. Richardson has won the hearts of his entire congregation and many people throughout the town who will miss him wonderfully. He was one of the brightest clergymen the Episcopals have ever had in Bellefonte. Broad and deep in his religous views, one could not help but love to hear him preach the gospel.

He was not only a wonderful teacher of Gods word, but a hard worker in the church, and has done much to build up the congregation in Bellefonte. He was the originator of the Young Women's Club in Bellefonte which organization has been a wonderful success and doing much good among the young ladies of the town.

He was a steady, quiet worker in the Master's warfare and the good he has accomplished for Him whom he loved will be ever lasting. Among the poorer class of people of the town Rev. Richardson was their friend. When in need he would help them, when in sickness he would see that they were properly attended to, when in death he was like a brother, full of sympathy and pity and would do all in his power to heal the bleeding hearts. These he did not only do among the members of his own congregation, but went out where they needed a friend. For these God will bless him abundantly. We are sorry he is leaving Bellefonte but when we know he is going for the benefit of his health, we bid him God speed, and if at any time he comes back to our old town the people will welcome him with out stretched hands and hearts full of love.

Married.

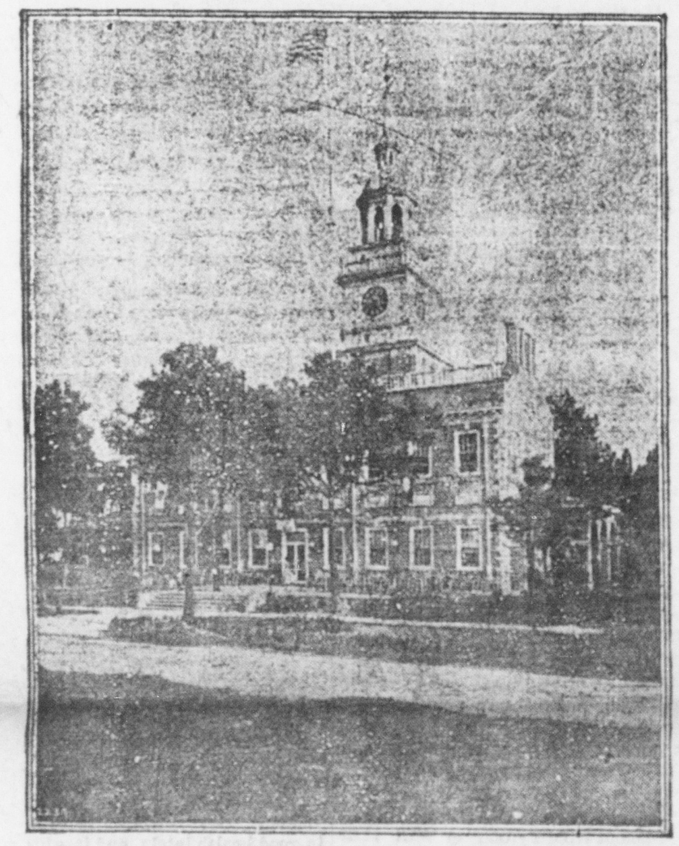
At the M. E. Parsonage, Pleasant Gap Pa., on Saturday evening Sept. 28th, Mr. William H. Sartman of Lemont, Pa., and Miss Rebecca J. Lutz were united in marriage by Rev. Durkee. The bridegroom is a promising young man and the bride is the accomplished young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lutz of Benner township, this county. They will reside at Houserville where Mr. Sartman is employed.

Pennsylvania Day at Jamestown Exposition

REPLICA OF OLD INDEPENDENCE HALL TO BE ONE GRAND RECEPTION HALL ON OCT. 4.

Governor Stuart and Staff, State Commissioners and State Officials to Participate—The Programme in Detail—Pennsylvania's Fine History Exhibit—Keystone State Troops at Tercentennial—Barbara Frietchie's Bible and Other Interesting Relics.

PENNSYLVANIA DAY at the Jamestown exposition is Oct. 4, and one of the most interesting programmes of the season has been arranged. Pennsylvania's hospitable building at the exposition is so centrally located that it is a popular rendezvous for visitors from every state, and every hour of the day finds its broad terraces well filled with resting multitudes taking in the sights of the harbor, the beautiful government piers and the magnificent array of state buildings along Willoughby Boulevard. Everybody is at home in Independence Hall, for Independence Hall belongs to everybody, and Pennsylvania day will be more of a national affair than a mere state event.



PENNSYLVANIA BUILDING, REPLICA OF INDEPENDENCE HALL, AT JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION.

The Programme.

Governor Edwin S. Stuart and party, consisting, with ladies, of about 200, will arrive at Old Point Comfort on Thursday evening, Oct. 3, where they will remain quartered until Monday. The governor will be accompanied by his staff, the state commissioners and the principal state officials, including all chief justices of the supreme court of Pennsylvania and the judges of the superior court.

The following special exercises will be held in the Auditorium Oct. 4, beginning at 11:30 a. m., Governor Edwin S. Stuart, president of the Pennsylvania state commission, presiding. Music will be furnished by the Exposition band:

Music.
Address of welcome, Hon. Harry St. George Tucker, president of the Jamestown Tercentennial exposition.
Music.
Address of welcome, his excellency Governor Claude A. Swanson of Virginia.
Music.
Response, Lieutenant Governor Robert S. Murphy of Pennsylvania, orator of the day.
2:15 p. m., luncheon to the governor and official party by the exposition company.
4 to 5 p. m., reception by the Pennsylvania state commission to the governor of Pennsylvania at the Pennsylvania building. Admission by card only.

The Ninth regiment Pennsylvania national guard, 900 men, will serve as an escort to Governor Stuart. They will camp on the grounds and meet the governor upon his arrival at the government piers.

Independence Hall Reproduced.

Pennsylvania was among the largest of the contributors to the Jamestown exposition, appropriating $100,000 for participation, and it was decided that this should be expended rather in a historical exhibit than in an exhibit of her resources.

Her state building is accordingly a reproduction of Independence Hall, Philadelphia, reduced one-quarter and finished within in the main according to the old pattern. Some few changes were necessary upstairs to meet the exposition requirements, but the essential features, large apartments and halls and stairways, are exact copies. The building cost $30,000, and in it is much fine furniture of the old pattern. A clock and bell were placed in the belfry at a cost of $3,000. The bell weighs 1,500 pounds and is four feet at the spread of base. The clock strikes the hours and can be seen and heard in all parts of the exposition grounds.

Some fine old portraits are shown in the Pennsylvania building of historic scenes and personages. There is a large portrait of Washington, one of Gilbert Stuart's, a private loan, and several others from the statehouse in Harrisburg. The replica of the room in which the Declaration of Independence was signed has its walls covered with copies of portraits of all the signers. A picture in the central hall shows the interior of Betsy Ross' house, with Betsy and the flag commission examining the finished flag. The committee consisted of George Washington, Robert Morris and George Ross. Among the wall decorations are the flags of the various cities of the state.

Gettysburg Pictures.

There are also 150 Gettysburg monument pictures. The Pennsylvania commission, through its superintendent of grounds and buildings, H. B. Rowland of Philadelphia, has given much care to the grounds around the building. The grounds are 200 by 260 feet. The state holds the option on the land, as other state commissions do.

A pleasant feature for Pennsylvania visitors is that they find all of the newspapers of the state contributed by the publishers. In connection with the construction of the building Superintendent Rowland calls attention to the fact that white pine is used, as in the original structure.

The Pennsylvania building is brilliantly illuminated. Two clusters of lights surmount the front terrace, while from the posts and brackets there are additional clusters of lights in abundance. All the lines of the buildings and tower are illuminated by rows of lights.

The members of the Pennsylvania commission are Governor Edwin S. Stuart, chairman; E. S. Stoutsburg, treasurer; Robert S. Murphy, William C. Sproul, Henry F. Walton, John M. Scott, J. Henry Cochran, Samuel P. White, Frank B. McClain, William Wayne, H. I. Riley, Frank W. Jackson, L. O. McLane, W. S. Harvey, George T. Oliver, James Pollock, John F. Lewis, A. S. Roberts, Paul H. Gaither, T. P. Patton, C. C. Frick, E. M. Thomas, John S. Arnot, chairman of the executive committee; H. F. Walton, executive officer, and James H. Lambert, secretary, the private secretary to the governor.

Pennsylvania History Exhibit.

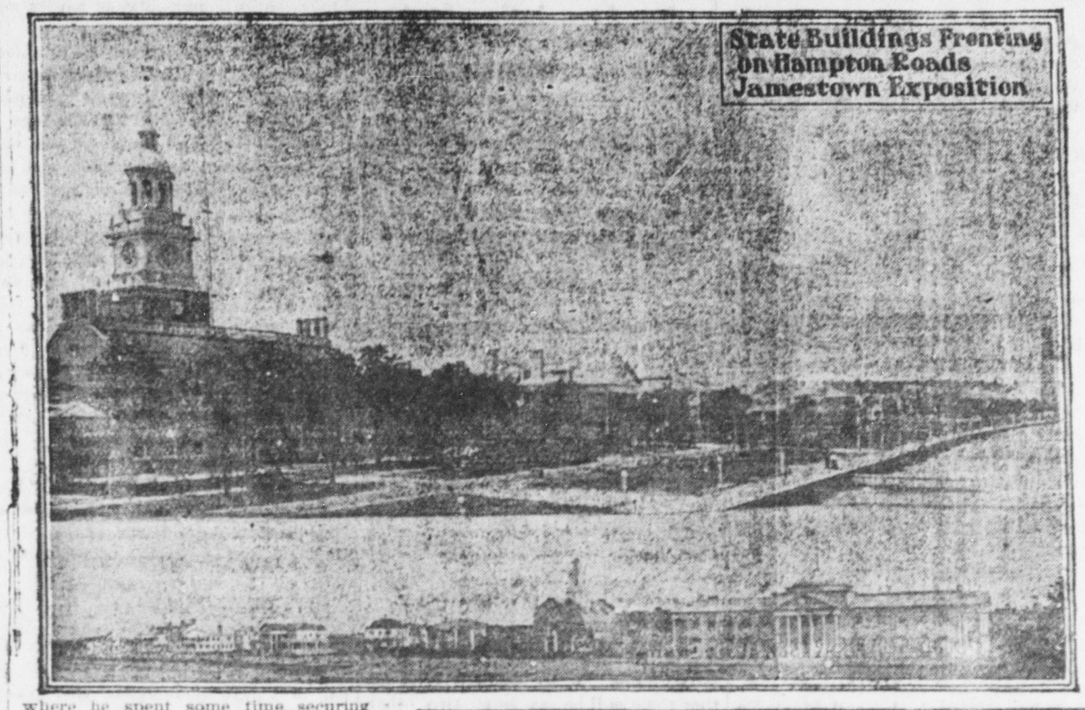
The Pennsylvania state history exhibit is located in the fireproof History building and is under the direction of Dr. Albert Cook Myers, an eminent writer of American history, of Moylan, Philadelphia, and Professor M. D. Learned, head of the department of German at the University of Pennsylvania, commissioned to prepare and install the exhibit. They have by reason of their wide knowledge of the subject and material with which they had to deal succeeded in collecting possibly the best exhibit of the kind the state has ever made.

A series of large wall maps, five in number, show the historical development of Pennsylvania. They are attractively arranged on the walls, interspersing the large number of portraits of the distinguished makers of the state's history.

The first of these maps illustrates the Pennsylvania of 1660, the second Pennsylvania of 1690, the third Pennsylvania in 1715, the fourth Pennsylvania in 1735. The fifth is a map of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia for 1735.

The most extensive part of the exhibit is a loan collection of objects illustrative of Pennsylvania history arranged according to the state's historical development.

One corner of the space represents the early period—the Swedish development. As an evidence of the pains taken in collecting the Pennsylvania exhibit it may be stated that a trained university man was sent to Sweden, where he spent some time securing photographs of documents in the official files of that country relating to the settlement of Sweden on the Delaware.



Relics of Quakers.

Much space is given over to the history of the Quakers, who were among the earliest settlers in Pennsylvania. There is a photograph of the Caleb Pusey house, built in 1683, which stands to this day and is the oldest house in Pennsylvania. In this house William Penn was entertained.

The Quaker case contains old silhouettes. An odd engraving, made by Hemskirck, of a Quaker meeting in London about 1680 hangs on the corner post. There are two valuable engravings made from paintings by Benjamin West and his family, one in 1779; the other of Penn's treaty with the Indians, 1681. Of this early artist's work two originals are shown, his first painted portraits. They are portraits of children, made about 1750, when West was only seventeen years of age, prior to his election to the presidency of the Royal academy.

Along the side wall is a showcase containing many ancient documents relating to the history of old Chester county, and above it hangs a portrait of the Quaker philanthropist, Lucretia Mott, painted by William Furness, brother of the great Shakespearean scholar, Horace Howard Furness.

Along the top of the rear wall is a long row of oil portraits of the governors and other early officials of the state.

In the center of the rear wall is a handsome painting of William Penn in armor at the age of twenty-two. There is also a glass case, known as the Penn case, which contains many parchments deeds and other manuscripts signed by Penn and his sons.

Pennsylvania's Germans.

Very naturally one entire corner of the Pennsylvania space is given over to German history. One case is devoted to the Ephrate Cloister, that peculiar religious sect established in Lancaster county about 1740. Many odd exhibits may be seen in this case, among them an old wooden communion service and wooden pillow upon which these ascetics rested the head while sleeping. This strange people had a well equipped printing establishment in operation, and a rare copy of the "Martyr Book" printed there in 1748 is shown. Copies of this book are particularly rare for the reason that during the Revolutionary war they were confiscated by the Continental forces and the paper used for gun wads. Many photographs of the old buildings and grounds where these people lived and worshiped according to their peculiar ideas are shown.

A case contains documents and relics from the German counties, among which are some samples of glassware manufactured by Baron Stiegel in 1760 and some ancient tiles from his house at Manheim, Pa. A thing which attracts the attention of every visitor is a model of the first telephone, made by Daniel Drawbaugh.

A copy of Barbara Frietchie's Bible, dated 1771, and a photograph of her baptismal record, 1767, are of interest to the admirers of this good woman.

There is a collective exhibit which covers well the history of another of Pennsylvania's numerous religious sects—the Moravians. This was a very intelligent sect of Germans, of which the Count and Countess Zinzendorf were the founders.

They made two settlements in the state in 1742, one of which was called Bethlehem and the other Nazareth. On the walls are photo engravings and oil portraits of the leading elders, all of the paintings being from the brush of Haidt and made prior to 1760.

The Moravians.

Two cases are given over to the history of the Moravians, and the exhibit includes some excellent maps of the towns and a unique collection of manuscripts and letters. In this collection are an original manuscript diary by Conrad Weiser, the famous Indian interpreter, and a letter from George Washington to the Moravians; also many of David Zeisberger's manuscripts.

There are two novelties in the way of musical instruments, one of them a harpsichord, made by the Moravians at Bethlehem prior to the Revolution, the strings of which will still give out a faint sound when the keys are touched. The other is a violin carved by Johann Antes back in the seventeenfifties. A photo facsimile of the first protest made in America against slavery may be seen hanging from one of the columns.

There is a most interesting collection of early Pennsylvania German imprints. In this case is an original copy of the first Bible printed in a European language on the American continent. The work was done by Christopher Sauer at Germantown in 1743.

In a case relating to early Germantown history are a boy's suit over 150 years old and some photographs of men and houses famous in the history of the town.

In the center of the Pennsylvania space specimens of household, farming and fighting instruments of the seventeenth century, and the last of the interesting and instructive exhibits to be dealt with in this article are samples of the early needlework done by the women of the state, which hang upon a center column.

space are grouped many novel and interesting exhibits, including ancient colored manuscripts and old firebacks, made by Pennsylvania Germans about 1740; early colonial costumes, bonnets and linen which belonged to leading people of the time; old watches, buckles, spectacles, lanterns, ballroom slippers, shoes and hats. A collection of household utensils includes the ancient pewter and that peculiar product known as tulip ware which the Pennsylvania Germans manufactured so largely.

High up, next to the ceiling, are arranged on the rear wall of the exhibit space specimens of household, farming and fighting instruments of the seventeenth century, and the last of the interesting and instructive exhibits to be dealt with in this article are samples of the early needlework done by the women of the state, which hang upon a center column.

GROWTH OF COMMERCE.

Unique Exhibit by State of Pennsylvania at Jamestown Exposition.

Fleeting centuries are as but a day in the all absorbing corner of the Education building at the Jamestown exposition, wherein is displayed a magnificent exhibit of the Commercial museum of Philadelphia, under the auspices of the Pennsylvania state commission. There one may in imagination barter with the Phoenicians of 500 years before Christ in the commercial exchange of pearls, gold dust, tin, alabaster, malachite, figs, dates, almonds, fine linen, myrrh, sandalwood, dragon blood, olive and palm oil and slaves, samples of each of these and many other articles of Phoenician commerce being on exhibition in this section, the slaves being represented by miniature figures, and it is noticeable that their color was not always black.

Thus the commerce of the passing centuries passes in review, and to the limited articles of trade of the Phoenicians are added in the early centuries of the Christian era such things as silk, hog bristles, cork, lemons and oranges, tea, rice, beads, etc. There the Romans appear as the bright and shining stars in the commercial world, the Phoenicians and Egyptians having given way to the sway of the Caesars. With the Romans came such articles of commerce as salt, wrought iron, brass, sheepskin, ivory, camels' hair, raisins, pongee silk, aloes, oak galls, honey, figs, spikenard and dates.

The exhibit of articles representing the trade of nations, interesting in the extreme though it is, would not be complete without the accompanying exhibit, showing by photographic representation and model the various methods or means of transportation of commerce past and present. Upon the walls of the section allotted to this exhibit are hung representations of the handcarts of Japan, the laden ponies of Asia Minor, the yak wagons of Tibet, the ox carts of India, the dromedaries of Siam, the camels of Egypt, the dogs and reindeer of Alaska and Siberia, the llamas of the Andes, elephants of Calcutta and scores of other equally interesting and unique representations of commercial ways and means. Then there are reproductions of fast flying freight trains of different nations and models of water craft used in commerce from ancient to modern times.

These models are in themselves worthy of hours of study. There are Venetian galleys, Arabian dhows, the drakers of the Norsemen, Egyptian punts, Carthaginian galleys, Malay proas, Bolivian balsas, Japanese junks, Phoenician galleys, Babylonian sea horses, Egyptian triremes, Spanish galleons and caravels, Italian nef, Dutch galleots, Polynesian sea camels, New Caledonia prahu and American clippers. The exhibit is one of comparison and contrast, a grand lesson in the study of commerce and commercial relations, the whole giving a vivid impression of the mutual interdependence of nations of the present day.

THE U. OF P. EXHIBIT.

Pennsylvania's Great College Well Represented at Jamestown.

Guarded by two bronze wrestlers and artistically decorated with the college colors, the exhibit of the University of Pennsylvania in the Education building at the Jamestown exposition is one of the most complete in the division.

The exhibit occupies one entire corner of the building. Along one side are heavy bookcases containing specimen volumes from the university library.

On top of the cases are numerous busts and bronze figures, many of priceless value, while on the wall above is a very fine collection of maps, charts and pictures illustrative of the work of the institution.

High up on the wall on a little shelf is a massive bust of Benjamin Franklin, founder of the university. On one of the bookcases there are two bronze figures modeled after statues found in the ruins of Herculaneum, which was destroyed by Vesuvius.

What has proved of great interest is a model of the first college buildings, plain and crude, constructed in the early days of the institution. In contrast with these buildings are shown pictures of the magnificent equipment of the present day, which is equal to that of any like university in the country.

BALANCE IN THE AIR.

The Necessity For Equilibrium In Bird Flight.

It is likely that the bird's superb ease and grace in the air are due to its ability to maintain absolute balance. If a gull makes the mistake of bending until the wind strikes its head and wings on the top it will tumble instantly. And the sailing birds, though they make no flapping motion of their wings, are constantly balancing themselves, like a man on a tight rope. Some scientists have maintained that the air sacs make it possible for the bird to manage minute changes that are very valuable in restoring equilibrium. It is known that the wing is joined to the body of the bird by what is called a universal joint, enabling the creature to make almost every possible motion. The body of a man is heavier than water, but if he gets into a position of perfect balance he will float. In some such way, it is claimed, the bird floats in the air. But as the bird would fall much more rapidly in the air than a man's body would sink in water the necessity for a far more subtle ability to keep the center of gravity on the part of the bird is apparent; hence, according to this theory, the bird is provided for this purpose with the most sensitive equipment, made up of nerves and mysterious air ducts, many of the wing feathers perhaps acting as sentinels, warning instantly of the slightest approach of shifting currents.—Everybody's Magazine.

ENTERTAINING THE DUKE.

Rudely Interrupted While He Was Chatting With Royalty.

The daily papers do their best, but not even their ubiquitous representatives garner all the store of good things which attend a royal visit to Ireland, says the London Sketch. No paper at the time printed the cream of the stories which grew out of a visit of the Duke of Connaught to the Emerald Isle. "Welcome to Ireland!" said a man as he saw the duke on the steps of a hotel in the little western town in which he was staying. "Welcome to Ireland, your royal highness. I hope I see your royal highness well." "Quite well, thank you," answered the duke. "And your noble mother, the queen. I hope her ould leddyship is enjoyin' the best of health?" "Yes, thank you. The queen is very well indeed," said the duke, vastly amused with the easy familiarity of the peasant. "It's glad I am to hear it. And tell me, your royal highness," the other went on, "how are all your noble brothers and sisters?" Before the duke could answer an aid-de-camp appeared, with, "Here, get along there." The peasant looked up with infinite scorn. "Arrah! What are yez interruptin' for?" he exclaimed. "Can't you see that me and his royal highness is houldin' a conversation?"

The "Nagur" and the Fiddle.

Here is a story that Frederick Douglass used to tell about himself: Once when he was in Dublin he felt very lonesome. He was wandering about the streets when he was attracted by two violins in the window of a second-hand dealer. Frederick entered and asked the price of one of the instruments.

"Five shillings, sor," said the Irish dealer.

Frederick tuned the violin and began to play "Rocky Road to Dublin." Soon the proprietor's wife heard the music and entered the rear door. Then Frederick started in on "The Irish Washerwoman," and the couple began to dance for dear life. When the music and dancing stopped Frederick tendered the dealer 5 shillings, but his performance on the violin had greatly enhanced its value in the mind of the storekeeper, and as he hurried away to a place of security he exclaimed:

"If a black nagur can git such chunes out of that fiddle I'll never sell it at any price, begorrah!"

NAIL CAMPAIGN LIE

Legislators Dispose of Only Issue Democrats Have Raised.

SHEATZ SOLDIERS' FRIEND

Men Who Served at Harrisburg With Nominee For State Treasurer Tell of His Interest In Veterans' Pension Bill.

[Special Correspondence.]
Philadelphia, Sept. 24.

Members of the legislature who served with John O. Sheatz at Harrisburg have supplimented the action of the war veterans in exposing the trick of the Democratic campaign managers who sought to misrepresent the action of Mr. Sheatz as a member of the general assembly in dealing with the bill to provide pensions for old soldiers.

The war veterans of this city, by resolution and through vigorous speeches of some of their most prominent members, repudiated the campaign circular sent out by Democratic politicians of Lycoming county, in which Mr. Sheatz was held responsible for the failure of the plans to have the state provide pensions for veterans of the civil war who enlisted from Pennsylvania, and who are now residents of this state.

Without regard to party or factional affiliations, men who sat in committee with Mr. Sheatz, when the old soldiers' pension bill was under consideration, have united in public declarations which show the falsity of the charges of the Democratic tricksters.

One of the most active of the younger members of the general assembly, Representative Joseph S. Thomas, of Bucks county, has come out boldly in defense of Mr. Sheatz in a statement which leaves no room to doubt that he is speaking with absolute sincerity and candor.

Democratic Lies Nailed.

Mr. Thomas, who is editor of the Bristol Gazette, reproduces the allegations made by the Lycoming Democratic outfit in their document sent out to influence old soldiers against the Republican nominee for state treasurer. He takes up each of the misstatements of fact, and gives the truth as he knows it.

"There is not a single line that does not contain statements which I know to be absolutely untrue," declares Representative Thomas. "John O. Sheatz, in a thoroughly conscientious and businesslike manner, did everything in his power to pass the real pension bill.

"He did not add a single item nor add one dollar to the figures that was not absolutely necessary to carry the bill into effect. He did not sit along side the governor and even suggest the veto of the bill. He did not put a single straw in the way to cause the bill's defeat.

"The alleged pension bill was introduced into the Senate by a Democrat. The bill as introduced by Senator Cochran was a ridiculous farce, and if passed in that shape and approved by the governor it never could have been put into operation. One million dollars appropriation was called for, but no provision was made whatever for the machinery to put the law into motion.

Sheatz's Conscientious Work.

"The bill passed the senate, went to the house and was referred to the appropriations committee, of which I was a member. Mr. Sheatz, the chairman of the committee, realized that the senate was engaged in a game of buncome set to work and for three weeks labored to whip the bill into shape. He called to his aid the auditor general and General Mulholland, of Philadelphia, the pension expert. Thorough calculations were made as to the amount of money that would be necessary to pay the pensions, and plans for a state pension bureau, under the charge of the auditor general were developed, with the necessary corps of clerks.

"Through General Mulholland, from the best obtainable figures, it was learned that about 55,000 were likely to apply for pensions and that the average to each would amount to $82.50. That made it necessary to appropriate $5,574,000 to cover the 15 months until the new legislative appropriation becomes available.

Let Truth Be Known.

"The amounts fixed by the house appropriation committee were carefully figured, and Mr. Sheatz worked earnestly and faithfully to make a sane and correct measure out of the farce passed by the senate. Governor Stuart, in my hearing, declared that he surely would have vetoed the bill as it came from the senate, and that the house had made a thorough bill of it and that he intended to approve it if there was revenue enough

"The house of representatives also passed a number of revenue bills which would have produced sufficient funds to pay the pensions to old soldiers, but Senator Cochran's colleagues in the senate killed every one of them, and that was the reason the governor vetoed the pension bill.

"John O. Sheatz acted fairly and squarely with the veterans. He was their best friend and labored in their behalf, while Senator Cochran trifled with a sentiment to play politics.

"Mr. Sheatz did his duty honestly and conscientiously, and has nothing to fear from the result of any examination made into its record.

Other Legislators Speak Out.

Representatives Andrew J. Pfaff and John R. Gillette, City Party members of the house from this city, and Representative Robert P. Habgood, of McKean county, are among others who have given public declarations that the charges that Mr. Sheatz did not work fairly in the interests of the old soldiers are absolutely false and malicious.

Representative Gillette, among other things, said:

"The nomination of Hon. John O. Sheatz by the Republican party for state treasurer removes the last doubt as to whether a Republican or Democrat shall fill that important office as the successor of Treasurer Berry. The good sense of the party has prevailed, and a more logical candidate could not have been named. Taking into consideration the exigencies of the situation, the nomination was a master stroke, and all factions of the Republican party can have no further reason at this time for remaining outside the breastworks.

"There is absolutely no truth in the campaign charges that Mr. Sheatz is not a friend of the old soldiers. I say this with knowledge of his work at Harrisburg in their interests."

PANBESA'S LETTER.

An Account of an Egyptian City Thirty Centuries Ago.

Probably the oldest letter in the world is the letter of Panbesa, written fifteen centuries before Christ to his friend, Amenemapt, a scribe.

The manuscript is of perishable papyrus, and it is amazing that it should have survived for more than thirty centuries and still be legible.

It is preserved in the collection of the British museum. It has been several times translated. It presents an interesting picture of life in Egypt in the time of Rameses II. It is more in the nature of a literary production, a poem composed in celebration of the visit of Pharaoh to the city of Pa-Rameses, than an ordinary letter of today.

Panbesa "greets his lord, the scribe Amenemapt, to whom be life, health and strength," and then goes on to describe the verdant fields, the thrashing floors, the vineyards, the groves of olives, the orchards of figs, the great daily markets, with their fish and waterfowl and swarms of purchasers.

The citizens had their "sweet wine of Khemi, pomegranate wine and wine from the vineyards," and to these they added "beer of Kati."

There was music in plenty furnished by the singers of the school of Memphis.

On the whole, Pa-Rameses seems to have been a pleasant place to live in. "The lesser folk are there equal with the great folk," and Panbesa writes that its maidens were "in holiday attire every day," with locks "redolent of perfumed oil."

Explanation Was Necessary.

As the Pratts' dog was at last detached from the trousers leg of the new milkman by Mr. Pratt's vigorous efforts the victim of the onslaught began to express his mind with considerable freedom.

"I wouldn't keep a dog like that," he said indignantly, but Mr. Pratt broke in before he had time to say more.

"He's only playful, that's all," he insisted, and at the same time he pressed something into the new milkman's hand.

The man glanced at the wad of green, and then as he transferred it to a safe pocket his expression changed.

"I guess I can take a little fun as well as anybody," he said dryly. "But till you explained it I had a notion that dog was in earnest when he bit that piece out of my trousers."—Youth's Companion.

Seeing the Sights.

Even in these days of liberal education the young women sometimes show how confused are the ideas shut up in their heads. Illustrative of this is the native blunder which Edmondo de Amicis recounts in his story of a voyage from Genoa to Buenos Ayres:

The captain of the steamer which numbered the charming young blunderer among its passengers met her one morning and said:

"Signorina, we cross the tropic of cancer today."

"Oh, indeed!" she cried with enthusiasm. "Then we shall see something at last."

Desiring and Attaining.

Between desire and attaining, all human life flows on throughout. The wish is, in its nature, pain; the attainment soon begets satiety, the end was only apparent; possession takes away the charm; the wish, the need, presents itself under a new form when it does not; then follow desolateness, emptiness, ennui—against which the conflict is just as painful as against want. That wish and satisfaction should follow each other neither too quickly nor too slowly, reduces to the smallest amount the suffering which both occasion, and constitutes the happiest life.—Arthur Schopenhauer.

Sandy's Criticism.

A young Scotchman went to a London school of music, where he learned to play the violoncello fairly well. On his return to his native village he gathered his friends together to hear his new instrument. When he had played one or two tunes, he looked up expectantly. After a slight pause his old grandfather spoke.

"Eh, maun," he said, "it's a maircy there's na smell wi' it!"—Liverpool Mercury.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough "cures"? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

MEETING AT UNIONVILLE.

the presiding bishop B. R Jones, laughingly ruling the whole out of order.

Thirty ministers and the thirty-three delegates present took up the regular work, reports were presented from circuits by the elders. Other preachers known as traveling deacons were called on and their reports presented. Another class of three were elected to elders ordination on the Sabbath, R. F. Leight of Duke Centre; E. L Monroe of Pleasantville; J. C. Davidson of Tyrone.

A. C. Tanner of Mayburg having been a member of the Pittsburg conference on trial was received into the Oil City conference in the same relation. Circuits supplied were then reported and Lilian Webster of Bellefonte, among other gave her report. She had been divinely called to the foreign fields as missionary during the past year. Her convictions were stated amid rejoicing on the part of all.

Ethel Cork of Meadville was granted a conference evangelists license. Other business was transacted and the sitting closed for the day. Rev. E. S. Zahniser, a newly elected district elder preached the evening before to a full house and Rev. G. A. Garretty, of Hydetown, preached the afternoon sermon on Thursday. Rev. W B. Olmstead, General Sunday School Secretary was in charge of the conference Sunday School annual meeting assisted by Bishop J. P. Bradhead, R. M. Whitecomb, Home Department Superintendent of Bradford District and J. K. Odell, conference Sunday School Secretary. Teacher training class organization was explained and a text book for the purpose was subscribed for by many of the members. It was a good presentations, by the General Secretary, of the work outlined in his handbook.

To one looking on the Free Methodist in conference session Saturday morning would impress the observer as a happy lot of people, Bishop Jones after the opening exercises took up the regular work of the conference and F. W. Parks of Philipsburg and Wm. Gearhart of Tylersburg circuits were received into the conference and elected to deacons orders

A. G. Crill and W. H. McClimans were continued on trial, both being absent the latter acting as Superintendent of Gerry Homes, N. Y. F. J. Barber was discontinued. Three candidates were received on trial for two years: B. H. Edwards of New Castle; A. J. Beattie of Sharpsville and Loyal Adams of Argentine. A collection of $15.91 was taken for the secretaries expenses on the conclusion of reports from circuits after a short recess business was resumed and several committees reported.

E. S. Zahniser presented report for committee on Quarterly conference records, including six districts, no errors, with one exception having been found.

J. S. McGeary conference treasurer reported $1846.65 paid to him on conference claims, and motion was made and carried to have claims of $1.05 per member assessed as last year. Disposition was made of each claim in the usual way. M. B. Miller as auditor gave a favorable report on the treasurers account.

Board of church extension were named A. J. Hill, J. S. McGeary, J. E. Berkheimer, Chas. Cowan and W. E. McFadden. Report on Sunday Schools was given by G. H. M. Zahniser and on the recommendation of that committee J. S. McGeary was elected conference Sunday School Secretary, assisted by J. K. Odell as statistical secretary of Sunday Schools with expenses to be met.

FOURTH SESSION.

Saturday afternoon the closing sittings of the Free Methodist conference was held at 4 o'clock, when all the committees reported, the worth of committee on reform being especially noteworthy, J. E. Berkheimer gave the report and it was ordered printed in the annual minutes. A lively discussion was brought about when W. E. McFadden, as delegate, suggested that an increase of conference claims be apportioned on a fund known as "conference missions." The preachers strongly objected, while several lay members were zealous in promoting an increase. "Well, if the preachers don't want it I wouldn't force it on them," said Bishop Jones.

A report of J. K. Odell, conference Sunday School Secretary, was presented showing an increase in scholars and cost receipts. J. S. McGeary was elected the conference Sunday School Secretary, with J. K. Odell as statistical secretary of Sunday Schools' Other elections took place on the several boards.

It was conceded to be the best conference session held in years, and the complimentary resolutions showed appreciation of the kindness of the people of Unionville.

The religious services Friday, Saturday and Sunday were characterized by a fervor and zeal not often seen in these parts.

Bishop J. P. Bradhead of the South African conference gave stereopticon views on a screen Friday night to a large audience. He was entertaining and spiritual in his lecture devoted to scenes among the native Zulus in South-eastern Africa. Bishop Bradhead declared that he would rather talk in Zulu than English. His rendition of a hymn in the Zulu language and afterward sung by him and the chorus by the audience was a striking feature of the lecture, but a climax was reached when the beautifully kept grave of G. Harry Agnew, a former missionary, was shown. The lecturer said, that while suffering with malorial fever, it was not comforting to look out on that grave knowing that Mr. Agnew had died of the same disease. They had been closely associated in their work, and the evening before he died, Rev. Bradhead had parted with him. Mr. Agnew saying. "I'll meet you in the morning."

The audience amid shouts and praises, sung an appropriate hymn, "Yes, I'll meet you in the morning." A scene followed that, beyond description.

All of the meetings were well attended, Mr, W. B. Olmstead being especially well qualified for discussion of Sunday School, missionary and publishing departments,

The dedication of the five Free Methodist churches took place Sunday afternoon, after $1100 indebtedness had been provided for by cash and subscription. The Rev. B. R. Jones, Bishop of the Free Methodist church preached the dedicatory sermon from "Holiness becometh they house, O Lord." It was a discourse that would have been indorsed by any lover of true holiness.

Three elders were ordained in the afternoon and two deacons at the forenoon meeting, R. F. Leight, J. C. Davidson and E. L. Monroe as elders and F. W Parks and Wm. Gearhart as deacons.

At 3:30 p. m. Rev. J. P. Bradhead addressed the conference, giving with many incidents, an outline of the lives of the natives in South Africa. Much interest was shown in a letter written in english by a native evangelist to the missionary while in America. Curios were exhibited on the wall and table, excited considerable interest, as well as a handmade map of the mission field in which Rev. Brodhead has labored for ten years. A good collection was taken of cash and subscriptions of over $200.

The closing meeting at night included a "love feast" a continuation of the morning's service. Rev. M. B. Miller of Franklin preached, followed by an altar service, a number of unsaved people presented themselves for forgiveness of sins. Conversions followed, and at a late hour the meeting broke up. "Love feasts," as conducted 50 years ago, are still observed by the Free Methodist, many striking scenes taking place, ministers embraced each other with exclamations of joy and love, while several lay members walked on to the platform giving vent to their feelings, with tears and shouts, accompanied by soul stirring songs.

1,002 Girls in Search of Husbands.

The White Star line steamer Baltic safely landed its cargo of young and marriageable women at Ellis Island Friday, and the officials of the line rested easily Friday. The Baltic left Liverpool more than a week ago with more than 1,000 young women. To be exact, according to purser Palmer, there were 1,002.

It was stated that they had come here to find husbands, but just why so many should have come on one steamer is more than the steamship men have been able to find out. They are satisfied, though, that this is only an advance guard, and that steamers still to arrive will bring many more. There were also on the steamship two hundred unmarried men, these failed to make any impression.

SLUGGISH LIVER PROMPTLY BENEFITED

R. F. SASS, JR.

RICHARD F. SASS, JR., room 415, Burlington Bldg., 810 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

Pe-ru-na a Godsend to Working People.

"I do not believe there is a person who takes Peruna but must admit that he has been benefited.

"I have met a large number of men and women who have used it, but I have yet to find the first one who has not been helped by it.

"It is of special benefit to poor working men and women who often suffer for the necessities of life, contract disease and have no money to seek medical advice.

"To such Peruna comes as a godsend, as it brings health.

"I have used it myself for a sluggish liver and for catarrhal troubles, with the best results."

Must get Vaccinated or Stay out.

The vaccination law is causing considerable trouble with the schools in Penn township, Centre county. Very few scholars are in attendance at some of the schools and a great many patrons of the schools are very much dissatisfied with the conditions prevailing, says the Millheim Journal. How to get out of the muddle is the question that is bothering the school board of the township.

A few days ago Mr. William Rider of Bellefonte sent his little daughter to school. She had a certificate from the family physician that she was not in condition to be vaccinated, but well enough to attend school. The little girl was sent home.

One Sided Reciprocity.

After a newspaper man has yelled himself hoarse in an effort to persuade people to patronize home merchants he stumbles on to the fact that some fellows he is trying to protect are sending away for their job printing or are using printed matter sent out by patent medicines houses, soap factories or other concerns, it rather shakes his confidence in mankind, and makes reciprocity look like a lead dime with a hole in it.

CORRESPONDENCE

All correspondents must be in this office not later than Tuesday evening. And local-matter must be written only on one side of the paper. Correspondents will kindly notice these requests.

Snow Shoe.

Paul Neff and his bride returned from their wedding trip and were met by the Snow Shoe cornet band which played several nice pieces. Phil said there were trains that would go a mile a minute and James said there was not, of course the argument got very strong when old Peggy came in and then came in Tom cooler the drummer, of course they stuck their nose in where they had no biz, but the argument still kept up till finally old John Sullivan Glenn came in and he put a stop to it, thus settled the fast train question.

The Snow Shoe band has made rules to this effect, that any member of the band missing a night without a good excuse would be fined $1.00 and one of the boys missed one night last week and his excuse was that his woman was sick, now we all know that he has no woman but of course that was his excuse. An Interesting Game of Foot Ball.

On Monday afternoon the High School boys went to the Fair Grounds to determine which team would be the victors. The Juniors and Freshmen lined up against the Seniors and Sophmores. The game was a hard fought one and when the end of the second half arrived the score stood 5-5. It is said by those who witnessed the game that the Juniors played the better game of the two, and the fact that their teams average weight is only 112 pounds to the Seniors 140, you would have thought the older classmen would have won by a large score. The line up was as follows.

Jr. & Freshmen		Sr. & Sophmores
Thompson	l end	Shaughenssy
Beezzer	l tackle	Valentine
Grove	l guard	A. Ward
H. Kline	center	Wetzel
R. Struble	r guard	Hollebaugh
W. Wallace	r guard	Gardener

—The next event of the season will be the Bellefonte fair, October 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th.

Business Will Soon be Booming.

Every day is giving evidence of the fact that fall trade this year will be on a large scale and that Bellefonte will get its full share of the business. The merchants of Bellefonte are alive to the occasion and always carry a line of goods that will meet the requirements. A good way to keep track of the places to buy to advantage is to read the advertising columns of the Daily News. The advertisements are crisp and well worth the reading.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the schoo bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you whould have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic which may avert much serious trouble, and we known of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental develoment by building up the whole system.

Birth-marks which mark and mar the outside of the body are a grief to every mother whose child may bear them. But for every child who bears a birth-mark on the skin there are many who bear an indelible birth-mark on the mind. Nervous mothers have nervous children and many a man and woman owes an irritable and despondent temperament to those days of dread when the mother waited the hour of her maternity. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription strengthens the mother for her trial. With strength comes a buoyancy of spirits and quietness of mind, which is one of the happiest gifts a mother can bestow on her offspring. By giving vigor and elasticity to the delicate womanly organs "Favorite Prescription" practically does away with the pain of maternity and makes the baby's advent as natural and as simple as the blossoming of a flower. No opium or alcohol in "Favorite Prescription." All ingredients printed on bottlewrapper. Is not a secret or patent medicine, but is the open prescription of an educated and experienced physician.

—That the greatest sins of many lives are the sins of omission.

—That the most lonely days of the week will be those in which we do least for others.

—That man's religion ought to put cheer into the heart of his neighbor as well as his own.

—That the day which records most small duties well done will be the best day of the week.

—That pious exercises on Sunday won't save a man's soul if he commits a sin on Monday.

—That the happiest days of this week will likely be the days in which our hardest work is done.

—Peter Keichline and son William have purchased a dandy 15 horse power Mitchell touring car. One more to the Bellefonte list.

—Friday evening at 7:30, Rev. A. M. Schmidt, will tell of his travels through Holland and Belgium, having visited Amsterdam, the Hague, Antwerp and Brussels.

—Failing to sell his house at public sale last Friday, as the highest bid received at that time was only $2,300, William Storm the barber, sold the property on Spring St., to Robert Irwin on Tuesday for $2,700. The sale of his household goods he has postponed until next week and it will probably be three weeks before he will leave Bellefonte to make his future home in Seattle, Wash.

—Tuesday being the opening of the squirrel and pheasant season many of our sportsmen are spending the day in the woods in the hope of bringing down and carrying home a nice mess of the nut thieves or what is better still, a nice dinner of drumers Hunters should bear in mind that they dare not under the law kill more than six squirrels in one day nor more than five pheasants in any one season.

—Walter Fry who at one time worked at Mr. John Meese's grocery store, afterwards drove for Mr. Shuey has been engaged by Joseph Brothers & Co., to assist Mr. Clevinstine in the Carpet department of this store. The trade in this department of Joseph Brothers & Co. store has grown to such an extent that extra men have been engaged in order to get the work out. Walter Fry is a good young fellow and is a hustler. This firm thinks a whole lot of him and intends to give him a good chance to advance.

—Excursion tickets to the fair will be sold on all railroads. The evening train west on the Bald Eagle Valley will wait at the grounds until after the races each day. The evening train on the Bellefonte Central will be held the same way. On Thursday and Friday a special train will be run over the Lewisburg and Tyrone as far as Coburn, leaving Bellefonte at 7 o'clock each evening. On all other lines and in all other directions there are ample railroad accomodations for bringing the crowds in the morning and getting them home in the evening, after seeing the full day's program.

—In all the years of your residence in Centre county you have heard of the famous "Eagle's Nest" up Spring creek; the mass of jagged rocks that tower away above the stream. In years gone by you have supposed that eagles made their nest there. Legends have taught you that but such a thing as real live eagles brooding there now has never entered your mind. Imagine your surprise when you will be shown real, live eagles that were captured in this very "Eagles Nest" only a short time ago. They will be exhibited by their captor before he ships them to the Zoological gardens in Philadelphia. You can scarcely believe it, of course, but you can see them at the fair next week.

—Joseph Wade, Sr., who was to appear before Judge Orvis Monday morning and be sentenced for committing an assault did not appear. The Court gave him until 10 o'clock Tuesday and as Wade did not put in his appearance Judge Orvis issued a bench warrant for his arrest. It seems as though the District attorney was not anxious to have Wade sentenced today as he told the sheriff not to be in a hurry about issuing the warrant. Parties interested in the case heard about this matter and reported the same to the Court, who demanded that the warrant be executed immediately, and instructed the Sheriff to do so. The Sheriff left on the evening train for Pittsburg for Wade

—Mr. and Mrs. George Boal, of Washington, D. C., are visitors at the Longwell residence on Spring street. Mr. Boal was once a student of law in Bellefonte and he has many pleasant recollections of that period of his life. There were four or five young fellows around here then, all of whom thought they would some day be sent to congress or occupy a place on the Supreme Court bench. This little crowd of blackstoneites has been scattered, as it were; to the four corners of the earth, some of them occupying excellent positions, such as Mr. Boal at Washington. Mrs. Boal, then Miss Jennie Gherret, was for years one of the efficient instructors in the Bellefonte Academy. They manage to get back to Bellefonte about once a year and their friends are always glad to see them.

—The town that hustles usually gets there.

—Col. Fairlamb is confined to his room at the Bush House with sickness.

—A change of occupation after one has reached the age of forty years is as a rule a pretty risky proposition. The man who has lived in the city up to this period and has been trained to clerical work usually encounters hard sledding if he starts in farming, while the farmer who sells his broad acres and embarks in the grocery business or other mercantile pursuits fares even worse.

—The Mahaffey Gazette has announced that unless some person comes along and buys that office before the 27th of this month the paper will suspend publication. Every day evidence is accumulating to the effect that even the editors of country newspapers are getting weary of working for glory alone, and the editor of the Mahaffey paper announces that he is going to engage in another business.

—Wilbur Wilson who went to Philadelphia twice to work, but found that Bellefonte was better than the Quaker City, returned and is now located in the office of the Bellefonte Lumber Co., where he will learn to keep books and do the general work in the office. In the mean time he will take short hand lessons from Mr. Gainsford. We wish the "Widow" lots of success and hope that sticks to the job.

—Week before last the Emigrant from Snyder county, through the Penrose Gazette, undertook to slander the police force of Bellefonte with the hope that he would receive the applause of some men. Last week this self-important blunderbuss was compelled to eat crow.—From the Centre Democrat—Now what in the world would any one want to slander the "Police Force" of Bellefonte? They must be talking through their hats.

—Joseph Brothers & Company laid a magnificent carpet in the State College Presbyterian church last week and they have also furnished one for the Lemont Presbyterian church. This firm has taken orders all over the country to carpet churches and public halls, and they have always given the best of satisfaction. Why they even sent a $100 order to Chicago to some people who wanted a certain pattern, and as they tried in all the larger cities none had it but Josephs.

—The habit of young girls running on the streets late at night unattended is a dangerous one. Every nice girl should absolutely refuse to be seen promenading the streets after dark or to be out at all without proper escort, and she should decline to associate with any girl who spends her evenings on the streets. Undoubtedly most of the mothers who do not know where their girls are in the evening, would keep them at home if they could. They have lost control of them and many a poor woman's head is prematurely whitened through worry over the wayward one.

—The dancing school that Harry Otto has started for young men is branching out wonderfully. The first night he had nine students, now the class has increased to thirty-five. In addition to teaching young men to dance he will also give an evening each week to young ladies. They were given their first lesson last evening and the number present for the first lesson was certainly encouraging. The young men will meet on Thursday evenings and the young ladies on Friday evenings in the Logan House ball room. On Thursday evening October 10 Mr. Otto will hold a ball for both the young ladies and gentleman at which he will have an Orchestra. One good thing about Mr. Otto's dancing school is, that no one but persons who want to learn to dance are admitted.

—Joe Twitmyer who has been a fireman on the L. & T. for quite a long time is now out on the main line learning the road previous to taking an engine. Joe has always been a very careful fireman and devoted his entire time learning all he could about an engine, now the he Pennsylvania Railroad feels that is capable of running one. And then Joe has had a most excellent instructor, a man who perhaps knows as much about an engine as any other employed by this company—Theadore Cherry. He has been patient and faithful to the one he taught and he deserves a great deal of the credit for Mr. Twitmyers promotion. Our best wishes go with Joe and hope that he will never have the misfortune to meet with an accident.

—In the base ball season just closed the Philipsburg club won 41 games and lost only 19. In nine games they shut out their opponents and in two games they were shut out by their opponents. The Philipsburg club scored a total of 326 runs against 180. Before the Mountain league season opened Philipsburg won fourteen straight victories and they also won the last twelve games straight in the league. The longest game played was with Winburne, July 24th which went 16 innings and resulted in a 1 to 0 victory, Omo and White being the pitchers. On August 13 they made a total of 19 runs against the same team, and on August 20th a total of 17 runs were made against the Renovo team at Hecla Park for the championship of Centre and Clinton counties.

—J. F. Rummel, who is well remembered by most Bellefonters from the time when he used to clerk in Sim, the clothier's store, is now located in Trenton N. J. He has been in Columbus, O. where he was manager of the Camp-Rummel-Wagstaff company, but went to Trenton to accept the position of general manager of a large department store in that city. Mr. Rummel has gained the reputation of being one of the best clothing and haberdasher men in the country so will no doubt make good in this position. Mrs. Rummel will be remembered as Miss Maude Campbell.

Mock, the Leper's Food Bill is High.

A Harrisburg dispatch says: Mock, the leper, is to the front again, and now the county of Dauphin is to be formally asked to pay for his food, as his appetite has gotten out of bounds, and the city authorities have figured out that the Poor Directors must pay for the maintenance of indigents. The latest report is that Mock eats ten or eleven time a day. One of the sanitary policemen declares that Mock occasionally arises at 2 a. m. to cook food. He is said to be gaining in weight, and the city will ask the county to give $3 a week to help pay for food for the ravenous Asiatic.

A stove has been bought to place in the wooden shack, which has been erected on the municipal hospital grounds and as the hospital is now to be lighted by electricity it is possible that wires may be run to the leper's hut, and he will revel in electric light, as well as in preparation of unlimited lunches. His menu has been helped out by gifts of some ginger crackers, fish and other things, which Mock promptly consumes.

For Lung Troubles

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral certainly cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption. And it certainly strengthens weak throats and weak lungs. There can be no mistake about this. You know it is true. And your own doctor will say so.

Pushing a "Good Thing."

The general manager of a traction of system of a western city recently received the following communication, together with a five cent piece. "I beg to advise you that a week or two ago I rode home on a car No. 1909 of your Main street line. The car was very crowded and the conductor, though no fault of his own, failed to reach me. When I left the car he was too far to the front to enable me to get to him. I therefore now remit you the amount of my fare, and beg to say that I would have done so sooner had it not been that I was out of town." This unusual occurrence was reported by the general manager to the road's board of directors, with the result that, by their instruction, an annual pass was sent to the honest patron, together with a letter couched in complimentary terms. The recipient must have recounted his experience to his neighbors, for in a little while the manager received a letter from another patron, reading: In view of the fact that yesterday I neglected to pay my fare on your line, I herewith inclose a five cent piece. Kindly forward pass to address below."

Honor Your Mother.

Have you a mother? If so, honor and love her. If she is aged, do all in your power to cheer her declining years. Her hair may have bleached, her eyes may have dimmed, her brow may contain deep and unsightly furrows, her cheeks may be sunken, but you should not forget the holy love and tender care she has had for you. In years gone by she has kissed away from your cheek the troubled tear; she has watched over and nursed you with tender care known only to a mother; she has been proud of your success; she has soothed and petted you. You may be despised by all around you, yet that loving mother stands as an apologist for all your shortcomings. With all that disinterested affection, would it not be ungrateful in you if in her declining years you failed to reciprocate her love, and honor her as your best friend? We have no respect for a man or woman who neglects an aged mother. If you have a mother, love her and do all in your power to make her happy.

Must be Held Down a Little.

Every school boy knows that a kite would not fly unless it had a string tying it down. It is just so in life. The man who is tied down by half a dozen blooming responsibilities and their mother will make a higher and stronger flight than the bachelor, who having nothing to keep him steady, is always floundering in the mud. If you want to ascend in the world tie yourself to somebody.

Engaged.

A well known evangelist at the close of one of his most stirring addresses approached a big, stolid looking German in the congregation who had paid the closest attention to the discourse.

"Are you a Christian?" asked the evangelist.

"Nein—Sherman."

"Oh, German? Well, would you not like to become a Christian and work for the Master?"

"Nein. I have youst got a shob to drive an ice wagon."

ASPIRATION.

I am the blush of the summer rose,
The flush of the morn,
The smile on the face of the dead,
The song newly born
From heart of the poet, from shell of the sea,
From rush of the river that oceanward flows.

I am immortal. Who knows me is glad.
Men give me the name
Of passions that kindle the soul—
Love, faith, beauty, fame—
I dwell with all these, yet am higher than all.
Without me the angels of heaven were sad. —Edith Willis Linn.

Sim Peck's Deer Hunt.

A self conscious young clergyman was "supplying" the pulpit of a country church. After the service he asked a deacon what he thought of "this morning's effort."

"Waal," answered the old man slowly, "it reminded me of Sim Peck's first deer hunt when he was green. He followed the deer's tracks all right, but he followed 'em all day in the wrong direction."

A Militant Republican.

Congressman John Sharp Williams tells of the militant republicanism of a man he met in Rome several years ago. The man was a merchant in a small town in New York.

One morning they went out for a ride in a victoria and passed King Humbert. The people lifted their hats to the king, and he bowed in return. As his carriage passed the one in which Williams and his friend were riding Mr. Williams lifted his hat, and the king bowed and smiled. The merchant sat bolt upright, looking straight ahead, and did not raise his hat.

"Don't you know who that is?" asked Williams.

"Yes. It's King Humbert. I recognized him the minute I saw him."

"Then why didn't you bow to him as I did?"

The merchant stiffened in his seat and squared his shoulders.

"I don't bow to no kings," he said.

The Real Thing In Ancestors.

"Have ye anny ancisters, Mrs. Kelly?" asked Mrs. O'Brien.

"An' phwat's ancisters?"

"Why, people you shprung from."

"Listen to me, Mrs. O'Brien," said Mrs. Kelly impressively. "I come from the raie shtock av Donahues thot shpring from nobody. They shpring at thim!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Both Should Be Thankful.

Mgr. Farley was crossing one day from New Haven to Dieppe when a young Frenchman attempted to take him in hand. This young man scoffed at religion and at clergymen, but he was unable to draw the monsignore's fire.

Finally the foolish youth resorted to sheer impudence.

"Gentlemen," he said in a loud voice, winking in the clergyman's direction, "gentlemen, I am informed that in the strange land of Madagascar whenever they hang a priest they hang a donkey along with him."

The young man laughed, and Mgr. Farley, looking at him mildly, said:

"Well, let us both be thankful, my young friend, that we are not in Madagascar."

Chickens of Leisure.

Mrs. Goldvein of Cripple Creek, having come into a fortune through a lucky strike, set up a country home near Denver, where she lived in style. One day, while she was showing some of her old time friends about the place they came to the poultry yard.

"What beautiful chickens!" the visitors exclaimed.

"All prize fowl," haughtily explained the hostess.

"Do they lay every day?" was the next question.

"Oh, they could, of course, but in our position it is not necessary for them to do so."—Lippincott's.

Met His Match.

When Alexis Caswell was president of Brown university a student named Betterly called on him. After conversing a moment upon the object of his visit the president asked him his name and upon being told said jovially, "Your name would be better without the last syllable, wouldn't it?"

"Yes," replied the student, with a laugh, "and wouldn't yours be as well without the C?"

Took Him at His Word.

The late Bishop Thomas Frederick Davies of Detroit once told an interesting story of an elopement. He figured in this elopement as the officiating clergyman. It was in Philadelphia, during his rectorship of St. Peter's.

The proprietor of one of the largest dry goods houses in Philadelphia had noticed for some months the melancholy attitude of his head clerk, a young man whom he held in high regard.

The clerk's pallor and increasing leanness, his frequent sighs and absentmindedness, worried the millionaire proprietor. He questioned the young man daily. Finally the clerk admitted that he was in love.

"Well," said the head, "marry her. Your salary is big enough."

"Ah," said the clerk sadly, "you don't understand. She belongs to one of the first families of Philadelphia, and her father is a millionaire."

"Well, maybe he wasn't when he married. You have a good position and a good name. You are a fair match for any girl."

"It's no use," sighed the clerk. "Her parents would not listen to me for one moment."

"Then elope with her."

"Do you advise that?" the clerk asked excitedly.

"Certainly I do. Is she— Do I know her?"

"Yes. She will be at your dance at Devon tomorrow night."

"Well, see here. I'll have my coachman out in front of my gate at 9:30. Rush the girl off into town and marry her. I'll arrange with a clergyman for you."

"By Jove," said the clerk, "I'll do it!"

And he did. The next night Dr. Davies performed the ceremony, and an hour or two later the millionaire found his daughter missing and was telegraphing in every direction to the young couple to come home and all would be forgiven.

Several Ways to Hatch Chickens.

The teacher had been talking about a hen sitting on eggs, and, with the incubator in his mind, asked if eggs could be hatched in any other way. "Yes, put 'em under a duck," was the response.

Something Had to Be Done.

The visiting minister was walking along the shady country road to a church where he was to preach that day, when he saw a little boy digging vigorously into the bank by the roadside. He stopped and asked the boy why he worked so hard on Sunday.

"I'm digging for a woodchuck, sir," replied the boy.

"Well, my son, don't you know it is wrong to do that on Sunday, and you won't get him?"

"Not get him!" exclaimed the boy; "why, I've got to get him! The minister's coming to our house to dinner today and we ain't got any meat."—Ladies' Home Journal.

His P. S.

A young countryman was courting a city bred damsel and proposed to her by letter. He added a P. S.: "Please let me have your answer by return post, as I have somebody else in my eye."

An All Round Misfit.

The late James McNeil Whistler was standing bareheaded in a hat shop, the clerk having taken his hat to another part of the shop for comparison. A man rushed in with his hat in his hand and supposing Whistler to be a clerk, angrily confronted him.

"See here," he said, "this hat doesn't fit."

Whistler eyed the stranger critically from head to foot and then drawled out:

"Well, neither does your coat. What's more, if you will pardon my saying so, I'll be hanged if I care much for the color of your trousers."—Everybody's.

Handicapped, but Healthy.

"Shure, it's married I am, Malone, since I last saw ye, an' I've got a fine healthy bhoy, which the neighbors say is the very picter of me."

"Och, well, what's the harrum so long as the child's healthy?"

The Wrong Number.

Patrick was working in the yards of a railroad. One day he happened to be in the yard office when the force was out. The telephone bell rang vigorously several times, and he at last decided it ought to be answered. He walked over to the instrument, took down the receiver and put his mouth to the transmitter, just as he had seen others do.

"Hillo!" he called.

"Hello! Is this eight-six-one-five-nine?"

"Aw g'wan! Phwat d'ye t'ink Oi am—a box car?"

Mutual Recognition.

A southern lawyer had gone to a northern state to practice his profession, but as he got no clients and stood a good chance of starving he decided to return south. Without any money he got into a train for Nashville, Tenn., intending to seek employment as a reporter on one of the newspapers. When the conductor called for his ticket, he said: "I am on the staff of —— of Nashville. I suppose you will pass me."

The conductor looked at him sharply. "The editor of that paper is in the smoker. Come with me. If he identifies you, all right."

He followed the conductor into the smoker, and the situation was explained. Mr. Editor said: "Oh, yes, I recognize him as one of the staff. It is all right."

Before leaving the train the lawyer sought the editor. "Why did you say you recognized me? I'm not on your paper."

"I'm not the editor either. I'm traveling on his pass and was scared to death lest you should give me away."

The Priest and the Rabbi.

Father Kelly and Rabbi Levi were seated opposite each other at a banquet where some delicious roast ham was served, and Father Kelly made comments upon its flavor. Presently he leaned forward, and in a voice that carried far he addressed his friend:

"Rabbi Levi, when are you going to become liberal enough to eat ham?"

"At your wedding, Father Kelly," retorted the rabbi.

To Prevent Riding Up of Skirt.

A common complaint is that skirts will ride up in the front. Women that have prominent abdomens have more trouble than others. There are two remedies for this—either to wear some of the many contrivances which are sold for this purpose or to make a tab of lining material about four and a half inches wide and five inches long.

This must be shaped out to fit the center of the skirt in front and caught with the seam when the facing is sewed on at the waist line. Finish the edge of it by pinking.

Modish Perfumes.

The woman who aspires to smartness takes care to be au fait in the matter of perfumes. Each year sees several new scents in vogue, though a certain few of the old fashioned essences retain their popularity. Of these lavender and wood violet denote the refined, well bred woman. The scents of the present season are remarkable for their subtle yet penetrating odor. Vinaigrettes are again considered modish.

Portuguese Salad.

Slice two medium sized firm cucumbers, one small Spanish onion, two medium sized tomatoes, two sweet peppers and two sound apples from which the cores have been removed. Mix in a salad bowl with four tablespoonfuls of French dressing. Serve plain or on lettuce leaves, ice cold.

A DRUNKARD'S REQUEST.

Asked Judge to See to it That he Could Get no Liquor.

An unusual request broke the monotony of the proceedings of the Montour county court Tuesday morning, when Walter Rupp, aged 24 years, asked Judge Evans that the court afford him protection from liquor, which he said had been the cause of all his misdeeds.

Rupp was in court, to answer the charge of assaulting an officer with intent to kill, to which he pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and to serve sixty days in the county jail. As the judge ceased speaking, Rupp became dramatic and in a loud tone said,

"Your honor, will you make an order forbidding any one to sell me liquor? That is the whole trouble with me, I drink. Just as soon as I get out of jail, I am in again. So long as I can get liquor it will be the same thing over again." As an afterthought, he said, "And your honor, make it so that no one can give me any liquor."

The court said such an order would be issued.

Your skin should be clear and bright if your liver is in normal condition. Kings Little Liver Pills act on the liver; and headache, constipation and biliousness disappear. Price 25 cents. Sold by Krumrines Drug Store.

Poisonous Beverages.

Pop is a veverage that has a wonderful sale in this state, especially at the county fairs. If the stuff was true to name but little harm would result. As it is, the dairy and food division of the Department of Agriculture is powerless to stop the sale of soft drinks. The department recently sent to Dr. William Frear, professor of chemistry at the Pennsylvania State College, six samples of "pop" and two of "root beer" for analysis. These samples were purchased from different fakers at Tipton.

One sample of root beer was found by Dr. Frear to be "thin syrup colored brown with dye, flavored with birch and sweetened with sacchorin."

The other sample of root beer was "thin syrup colored brown with vegetable dye, flavored with birch."

Pop, made at Galitzin, was "slightly acidified sugar syrup, colored with coal tar dye, flavored with artificial banana, thickened with gum."

Another pop made at Gillitzen was "chiefly sugar solution, flavored with birch and colored artificially."

Pop made at Hastings was "thin syrup flavored with imitation raspberry, thickened with gum, colored with coal tar dye and sweetened with saccharin."

Pop made at Altoona was "diluded syrup, flavored chiefly with birch, colored with vegtable brown, and contains saccharin."

Pop made at Lock Haven was "thin syrup thicken with gum, flavored chiefly with birch, colored with vegtable brown, sweetened with saccharin."

Pop made at Altoona was "a thin syrup acidified flavored with syntheric flavor, thickened with gum, dyed with coal tar dye, sweetened with saccharin."

Jury Returns a Curious Verdict.

The jury in the case of Joseph Brady, charged with the murder of his brother-in law James Allen, at Fernwood near Media, on September 2, after being out all night, returned with the peculiar verdict of "guilty of murder in the first degree, with a recommendation of mercy."

The verdict was a compromise to one man who held out against eleven. This juror was also chosen by compromise, after he had declared he was opposed to the death penalty, and who hoped by the recommendation to have a sentence of imprisonment for life imposed. Judge Johnson stated that unless sufficient reasons for a new trial are advanced, he will sentence Bray to be hanged and let the matter of mercy be decided by the board of pardons.

Answering The Call.

By Dorothy Glenn.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

Forsythe scowled out into the black night. The southbound express was already overdue. As soon as the long train of coaches had thundered past he could close up and go home.

"Going home" meant a dash across the sodden field to where he had pitched his tent for the summer. Jack Bailey, the regular operator at Haddon Junction, owned a tiny house, one of the four that constituted the settlement about the place, but Howard Forsythe preferred the tent for the summer, and so the house was shut up.

Hard work had kept Howard Forsythe in bad health all winter, and the physician had advised camping. He had pleaded the necessity for earning sufficient money to enable him to complete his senior year at college, and so the doctor had suggested Haddon Junction. Bailey was to be married and was going out west on his honeymoon. He expected to be gone all summer and was glad to have a man to take his place who would be willing to give it up in the fall.

Matters were arranged between Bailey and the train dispatcher, and ever since the college year had closed Howard Forsythe had reported the trains on the main line and the little twenty-five mile spur that gave the junction its name.

There were dreary times between, and Howard spent a part of his leisure in talking to Lottie Bayliss, the agent up in Green River, the first stop on the branch line. Lottie was a cousin of Mrs. Fyce, who lived at the junction, and it was her custom to run down on her bicycle after her office was closed as soon as the 6:37 had gone up.

She found the station more interesting than her cousin, and before the middle of August she was wearing the ring that Howard had ordered from town. They were not to be married until Howard had graduated, but the thought was an incentive to the man, and the days sped all too rapidly until the inevitable lovers' quarrel.

"I DID NOT TELEGRAPH FOR MR. FORSYTHE."

That had occurred three days before and Lottie had not been down to the junction since. It was for that reason rather than because of the belated train that Howard scowled into the darkness as he looked down the track.

At last the headlight gleamed faintly through the deluge, growing brighter, until with a roar the train swept past. Howard reported the train to the dispatcher's office and prepared to close the station. He was just slipping into his raincoat when the instrument on the Hampton line began to click out his call, and without waiting for a reply went on.

"I am alone in the station and robbers are trying to blow open the safe. I am tied to a chair and cannot escape. Come to my assistance."

Howard groaned. It was eight miles to Green River, and through the pelting storm he could not make it in less than twenty minutes. Perhaps he would be too late.

He ran to the shed where the track bicycle was stored and ran it out upon the rails. There was no use to carry the raincoat. He threw it in the shed, together with his coat and vest, and, making sure that his revolver was in his pocket, he stepped into the seat. It was up grade all the way to Green River, but the tracks were wet enough to hold the wheels, and Howard bent to his work. He had gained in health since he had come to the junction, and no freshman working to make the eight had ever bent his back to his work as did Howard Forsythe speeding to the rescue of the girl he loved.

He was drenched to the skin, and the driving rain nearly blinded him, but he fought his way between the teeth of the half gale that was blowing, and at last the lights of Green River came into sight and encouraged him to make a final spurt. With a rush he drew into the station and sprang from the bicycle. The station was dark and apparently deserted.

As quietly as he could Howard crept about the platform, peering into the windows. He could see no sign of life, and at last he sought to force the doors in the belief that the robbery must have been accomplished. He was still working upon the lock when a heavy hand fell upon his shoulder.

"Got ye!" was the triumphant exclamation. "Stole a track velocipede, did yer? Goin' to rob all the stations in the rain? Well, there's one constable that knows his duty."

"Are you the constable?" demanded Howard. The other flashed his star with a gesture of pride, and Howard went on:

"I am the operator from the junction. I had a message from Miss Bayliss. She telegraphed that she was in trouble, and I came to her assistance."

"I guess Lottie Bayliss don't have to call on the junction for no help while I'm here," was the rejoinder. "Lottie never sent no message like that. That's too thin a story, young fellow."

"But it is true," Forsythe persisted. "Force the door, and you will find her tied to a chair. There have been robbers here already."

The constable grinned.

"You want to tell me that she's tied to a chair? I was over to Clem Bayliss' tonight. Jest came away from there. Lottie said good night to me. Come along now."

"Are you going to take me to the jail?" Forsythe demanded.

"That's what I be," was the answer in uncompromising tones.

"Will you stop at the Baylisses on the way there?" he begged. "It will only take a moment, and Miss Bayliss will identify me."

The constable paused uncertainly, but at last he decided to grant the request, and he led Howard up the trim walk through the Bayliss garden.

"I caught this young fellow trying to break into the station. He declared that Lottie telegraphed him to come up," he explained to his recent host.

Lottie came into the hall at that moment.

"I did not telegraph for Mr. Forsythe," she said coldly. "I have not been in the station all evening."

"But you did," persisted Howard. "You telegraphed me that you were bound to a chair in the station and that robbers were preparing to blow open the safe. I would know your Morse anywhere any time."

To the surprise of all Lottie began to laugh so that she sank down upon a chair. It was some minutes before she could explain. At last her mirth abated.

"I am teaching my nephew, Ted, telegraphy," she explained. "I borrowed some wire from the construction department, and most of it is strung on the railroad poles. I was practicing with him tonight, and I sent that absurd message for fun. The wire must have broken in the storm and crossed your wire, and that is how you happened to get it."

"And it's a sell?" he asked ruefully as he thought of the hard trip.

"How did you come up?" she asked.

"On the track bicycle," he explained.

"Through all this storm?"

Howard nodded.

"You poor boy," she said. "You must have nearly killed yourself. Father will take you upstairs and give you some dry clothes.

"It would be no use," he reminded. "I've got to get back again. The limited goes through at 6 and must be reported."

"But you will take good care of yourself when you get back, won't you?" she pleaded.

Howard nodded. She followed him to the door.

"Howard," she called, as he was turning away. He came back up the steps.

"I'm going down to see Cousin Jane tomorrow afternoon," she said softly. "I'll tell you then how sorry I am that I was cross and hateful the other night."

There was a soft sound of meeting lips, and then Howard went down the walk. The rain still poured in sheets, but he did not notice it. In answering the call he had found not danger, but happiness, at the other end of the wire.

The Savage and the Bird Cage.

A gentleman who went out with Stanley to Africa took with him a number of bird cages in which he hoped to bring back some specimens of the rarer birds of the interior. Owing to the death of his carriers he was obliged to throw away the bird cages, with a number of other articles. These were seized by the natives in great glee, though they did not know what to do with them, but they eventually decided that the small circular cages were a kind of headgear, and, knocking off the bottom, the chiefs strutted about in them with evident pride. One chief, thinking himself more wise than the others and having seen the white men eat at table out of dishes, thought they were receptacles for food and took his meals from one, ceremoniously opening and shutting the door between each mouthful.

Hit Harder.

"Woman is considered the weaker vessel," she remarked, "and yet"—

"Well?" she queried as she hesitated.

"And yet," she continued, "man is the oftener broke."—Exchange.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend Directors Meeting in Harrisburg, Pass Resolutions in Line with the Amalgamation.

THE BELL TO ASSUME OBLIGATIONS

At a meeting of the directors of the Pennsylvania Telephone Company, held in Harrisburg on Wednesday, resolutions were passed for the purchase by the Bell Telephone company of Philadelphia, of the Pennsylvania company, giving one share of the stock of the Bell company, of Philadelphia, for each share of the Pennsylvania company. The Bell is to assume all obligations and pay all debts of the Pennsylvania company, this action amounting to the amalgamation of the two companies.

Local men who are interested in the Pennsylvania Telephone Company consider the amalgamation of the two companies a very good move for the Pennsylvania, pacing as it does a small company in a large one. The Bell, of Philadelphia, has a good standing, operating in Philadelphia, and surrounding counties.

Consolidating the Pennsylvania with the Bell it makes a stock that is listed on the stock exchange. This one thing is considered by local men as a consideration of some importance, and in general it is believed that the Pennsylvania, as a part of the Bell Telephone Company, of Philadelphia, will have a better standing and better facilities for successful service.

A Handsome Monument.

Milton Johnson, the Bellefonte marble dealer, has placed in the Catholic cemetery in this place, a handsome monument to the memory of two brothers, Stefen and Hric Bovanco. These are two of the Austrians who were buried beneath the tons of rock and earth at the quarries of the American Lime & Stone Co., something less than a year ago. The monument stands over ten feet in height and made of Westerly granite which is among the finest in the market. The inscription contains the names of the two brothers, and states they were killed in the lime quarries. The monument, which cost about $350, was the gift of Rosie Bovanco, the wife of Stefen Bovanco, one of the men in whose honor the marble shaft has been erected. Besides this there is a marble post at each corner of the lot with an iron railing running the entire plot of ground. Although the monument is large it is a neat design and reflects great credit on the workmanship of Mr. Johnson and Charles Heisler who assisted in the work.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing. In the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

Football Sidelights.

While candidates at many of the colleges in the country have scarcely donned their football regalia, here at the Pennsylvania State college the men who are out for a football "S" have been at work for a week and some of them have been hardening up their muscles for football in this fine mountain atmosphere for three weeks.

The freshman class of 450, the largest in State's history, has brought with it a wealth of good material, but it will take an immense amount of coaching on the part of Fennell, Golden and Dunn to get any of the new men into anything like State condition.

Outside of quarterback there is a satisfactory number of candidates for every position, more than 50 men having reported to Capt. Burns for practice. It is to Burns, the lightning [illegible]d, who plays with all his energy, that the undergraduates look for a successful season. Burns is deserving of all confidence, for there is no manlier lad and gentlemanly football player in college circles than he.

The Indian game is but one week away and a game tomorrow with Geneva, at State, is the only real work-out the local team will have before the dusky redskins are met at Williamsport. Coach Glenn Warner, of the Carlisle school, has been keeping exceedingly quiet regarding what his eleven will do to State this year, but after State's victory last year over the Indians there is no doubt that he is making every effort to even matters up. The local coaches and Capt. Burns have nothing to say regarding State's chances, but there is no doubt that the White and Blue will fight valiantly for the game. McIlveen has not yet come down to school, but it is hoped he will be here in time to lend his valuable aid in rounding the varsity squad into shape for the red men.

More Railroad Buildings.

$900,000 will be spent by the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg in laying double tracks from Brockwayville to Carmon, a stretch of nine miles, and when the work, which is to be began at once is completed, the road from Punxsutawney to Ashland Junction, where the road branches to Buffalo and Rochester, will be all double-tracked.

Thomas Shoemaker of Bellefonte, who recently built the Islin branch of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg railroad, has received the contract and work on the double track will begin at once, under direction of Division Engineer D. S. Watson.

According to a survey completed by Watson, many long curves will be straightened, and a tunnel 1,200 feet long will be put in. This tunnel, entailing a vast portion of the expenditures, will decrease the distance by a mile and make this portion of the railroad one of the best on the division.

The Merry Opera of "The Toymakers."

Those who want to laugh and forget "dull care" have a treat in store for them in the new comic opera which like the book is called "The Toymakers," and will soon be a delightful attraction in this city at the opera house and from all advance information, those who want to be amused will be sure to want to see this musical absurdity. The date of the production of "The Toymakers" is Friday Nov. 15 and it will be for one night only, so that seats should be reserved early.

The author of the book and play is Charles Felton Pidgin, Chief of the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics, who wrote "Quincy Adams Sawyer" which was read and talked about all over the country and called "the best New England story ever written," and now he has written another bright, witty book in "The Toymakers" which is just as amusing and full of interest as his first book. Dry statistics must be good daily food for Mr. Pidgin simply bubbles over with merriment in all his books and plays. The music was written by Chas. D. Blake and John A. Bennett and has twenty-six bright and catchy numbers which are really new and tuneful and just fit the story. It is a fantastic bit of comedy, showing the peculiar situations that arise from the invention by "John Senior Stubbs" of a beautiful mechanical doll which he brings to life by the use of electricity, and it is easy to imagine the amusing complications that arise from such a combination of antique and modern inventions. That famous company of merry comedians, singers and dancers, "The Jollities," will produce this opera and they carry their own scenery, painted especially for the "The Toymakers" representing an old English inn and the interior of the toyshop. Their costumes are rich and artistic. Altogether it would be difficult to spend a more entertaining evening than to hear "The Toymakers."

Always 8.20 O'clock.

A watch or clock face is a very customary sign for a jewelry business which gives the inquisitive and thoughtful folk the opportunity of again asking the much repeated question, why these advertising clocks were always erected and placed in position with the hands indicating twenty minutes past eight o'clock and of course brought the usual answer, that that was the time of day at which our martyred president, Abraham Lincoln died.

This answer is erroneous, as history relates and we think, with authenticity too, that President Lincoln was shot on the night of the 14th of April, (Good Friday), while witnessing the play, "American Cousin" in Ford's theatre, at Washington, D. C. The shot was fired during the third act at 10.20 p. m., and Mr. Lincoln lived until the next morning, dying at twenty-two minutes past 7 o'clock on April 15th 1865.

Thus some other reason must be given for the advertising clock's hands always being placed at about 8.20.

Don't worry about your kidneys when you can obtain 30 days treatment of Pineules for $1.00. These little globules bring relief in the first dose. Backache, Lumbago and Rheumatism yield quickly. If not satisfied your money refunded. This is a fair offer you can't lose. Sold by Krumrines Drug Store.

THE NEW CAFE.

Mr. Clyde Blackford's Up-to-date City Restaurant—To be Opened Saturday in Great Style.

So many people throughout the town have been saying lately, "If we only had a good restaurant where we could go and enjoy a good meal occationally, it would certainly be a pleasure."

Mr. Blackford saw what was needed and he immediately began to try and please the people. At a great expense he has remodeled his eating parlors on Bishop street and now they put you in mind of some of the best you see in the large cities. It is his intention to conduct his large business on an entirely different system. He will cater more to the professional, business and higher class of people in Bellefonte, and will have a corps of waiters who will in a gentlemanly manner do all in their power to please the many customers.

It has been an expensive venture, but we feel sure that when our citizens once know that they have a place to go where they can enjoy a good, clean meal without being annoyed by a lot of roughs, he will soon be repaid.

In making these expensive improvements Mr. Blackford has been zealous and left nothing undone but what would be pleasing to his trade. The large room was extended twenty-five feet to the rear, and an entirely new kitchen built. The room has been beautifully papered and painted. The side walls being of deep maroon and the ceiling of a light delecate English design. Each table will contain a menu of what can be had, which will consist of everything that can be made. Mr. Blackford will have his formal opening on Saturday evening, when he will have Deitrick's Orchestra to furnish the music while you eat of the good things that have been cooked.

Their is hardly a man in the 5th Regiment N. G. P., or the Mason's Lodge of Bellefonte or at State College that don't know Wallace Kerstetter, he is known nearly all over the state for his excellent cooking. Well, Mr. Blackford has secured his services at a great expense, he alone will attract those who know of him and of his services in days past by.

Mr. Blackford will be present himself to see that everyone is accommodated and that at all times the best of order will be maintained. Remember the formal opening will be on Saturday evening. Go and enjoy yourself, and hear the good music furnished by one of the best orchestras in the state.

Mourners Waited Not.

A dispatch from Wheeling, W. Va. says: Relatives of Mrs. Fred Hartsell were bemoaning her death over her coffin a few minutes before the minister arrived to conduct the last sad rites, when she suddenly sat up and climed out of the coffin.

There was a rush of mourners for the open open air, windows being used as exits. They were terror-stricken, and the minister swoonbed, when a pale-faced woman, over whose remains he was called to conduct services, met him at the door.

The family was too poor to have a physician, and the woman fell into a swoonn,in which she remained three or four days. Her husband thought her dead and sent for the undertaker.
